

Looking to Prevent Substance Abuse in Your Community?

Check out our science-based model programs at www.samhsa.gov/csap/modelprograms

New models are added often—from the Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP), other Federal agencies, and nonprofit and corporate resources

Model Programs

- Across Ages
- Athletes Training & Learning To Avoid Steroids (ATLAS)
- Child Development Project
- Communities Mobilizing for Change on Alcohol
- Creating Lasting Connections
- DARE To Be You
- FAN Club
- Keep a Clear Mind
- Life Skills Training
- Project ALERT
- Project Northland
- Project STAR
- Project Toward No Tobacco Use
- Reconnecting At-Risk Youth
- Residential Student Assistance Program
- SMART Leaders
- SMART Team
- Stop Teenage Addiction to Tobacco
- Strengthening Families Program
- And more to come

We now have proof that prevention works! Through a rigorous evaluation process, CSAP has identified effective, science-based substance abuse prevention model programs. These community-based programs can be adopted in their entirety or adapted by programs interested in improving and/or expanding existing services. The programs proclaim a powerful message—that building caring and supportive relationships in a nurturing environment can and does reduce and prevent many high-risk behaviors, including the use of alcohol and drugs.

CSAP's new Web site brings the latest information on these model programs to researchers, program planners, practitioners, evaluators, policymakers, and funding resources—everyone involved in creating positive change in the lives of youth.

Whatever your role in substance abuse prevention, you'll want to visit the Web site often to:

- Access materials on how to implement and evaluate your community's substance abuse model prevention program
- Request training and technical assistance from program developers
- Nominate your program for inclusion in the National Registry of Effective Prevention Programs (NREPP)
- Link to numerous prevention and funding resources
- Check out and order many free publications on all model programs and the latest in science-based prevention

New models are added regularly to the Web site. Sponsored by CSAP and other Federal agencies, State and local government, nonprofits and the corporate sector, these programs represent the best in science-based substance abuse prevention today.

www.samhsa.gov/csap/modelprograms
or toll-free 1-877-773-8546

HERE'S PROOF
Prevention
Works
CSAP Model
Programs

